THIS BOOK

THIS book belongs to those who see
Departing's tragicomedy.

With eager wings yet loath to fly,
We pause, these pages now to write;
Some shadows dim, some spots of light,
Some memories that will not die.

These disappear when blind ones look
Between the covers of this book.

"ALL THE WORLD'S A STAGE AND ALL THE MEN AND WOMEN MERELY PLAYERS"

Three centuries ago, Shakespeare voiced what has been true since the beginning of all time, that we who live in this world are merely players "having our entrances and our exits and each in his turn playing many parts."

Four years ago we bade good-bye to the "little boy with shining morning face creeping like a snail unwillingly to school" and entered upon the more concentrated and exacting field offered by a high school education. These years, like the rehearsal of a play, have been but the early preparation of the actor, the ground work on which he lays the basis of his future career.

Few of us understand the stage and the life of its people, the many weary days of preparation which lead suddenly to the first performance with its blinding lights and the smothering stillness of the dark pit wherein sits the audience watching and listening. It is at this point that we now stand. Our days of preparation are over, and the graduate steps out upon the stage of life and faces an audience critical but unseen. It is here that he undergoes the crucial test. Does he know his lines? Can he act his part? Perhaps he may at first be cast in a role not to his liking. Will he play it nobly and ably? Will all his preparation bear fruit? It may be the audience will not applaud; they may rather cheer an actor whose appeal is more superficial. Will he give up in discouragement, or will he redouble his efforts, and, with honest belief in his own power, wring from the audience the acclamation which accompanies successful endeavor?

How ever long our engagement may be there will always be an attendant audience, watchful and critical. This audience may vary in size, the footlights may dim, the spotlight may waver and the scenery may shift, but the play goes on. May all of us act so well that we may be worthy of applause.

93 SUMMIT STREET

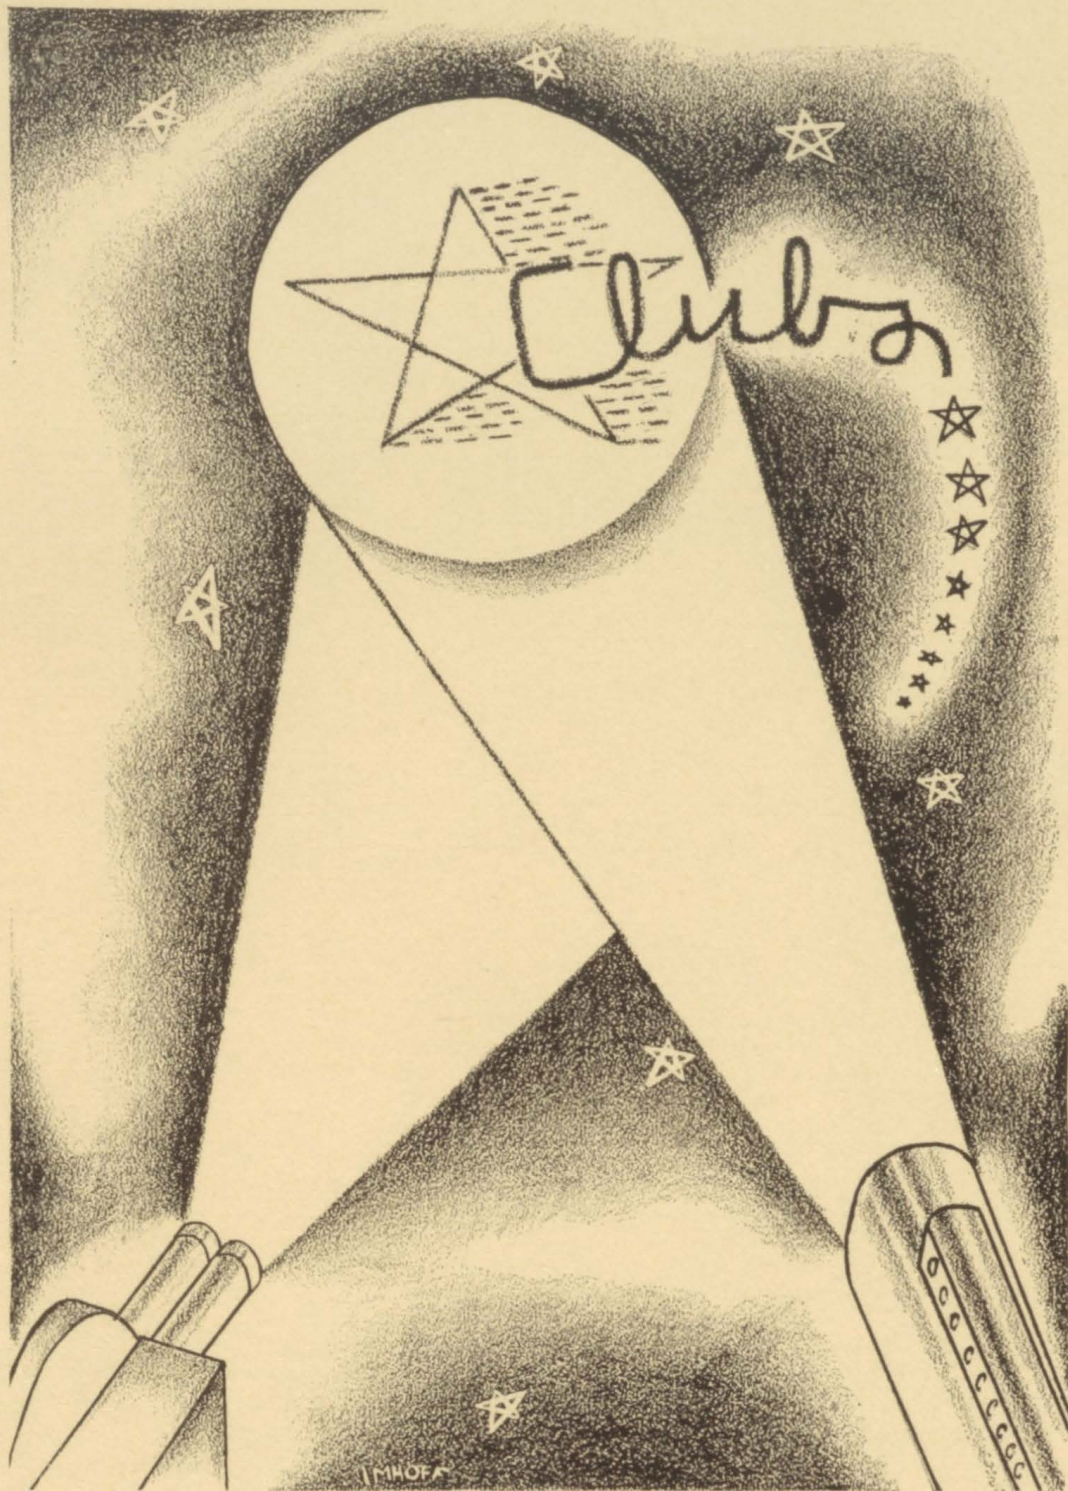

We regret that the following people who have left school for various reasons have not been with us this term: Harold (I-I-da) Kritzer, David Fronefield and Edward McDaniels. They are all completing their work in the Barringer Evening High School, and we are happy to know that David Fronefield and Edward McDaniels will graduate from the Day School with us. Audrey DuPont, our former Vice-President, Joart Lovington and Sara Colamarino are attending other schools. Wellington Ludlow, by earning the necessary points in summer school, has already received his diploma.

APPRECIATION

To those members of our faculty who have been of special assistance in the past three terms we Senior A's express our sincere gratitude—to our office, Mr. Gurley, Miss Disbrow, Mrs. Wilson and the staff for their generous cooperation; to Miss Capen for her splendid suggestions and invaluable assistance throughout our Junior and Senior years—especially her aid in our Minstrel; to Mr. Celiano, Mr. Vogel and Mr. Bruder, who gave of their time and energies unstintingly at every one of our class functions; to Miss Briggs who trained and supervised our Minstrel ushers; to Miss Bishop who costumed our Minstrel; to Miss Robinson who trained and supervised our Minstrel orchestra; to Miss Lomas, Mr. Sibilia and Mr. Lippe who helped at our Minstrel; to Mrs. Blair who supervised the work of our Year Book Art Board; to Mr. Hartman, Mr. Dangler and Mr. Slavin for help at our dances; to Mr. Buhrman, Mr. Ammarell and Mr. Sanders for advice on routine, and to Miss Schneider and Mr. Wood for their generous assistance during our first year of organization.

Thank you!

4B MINSTREL

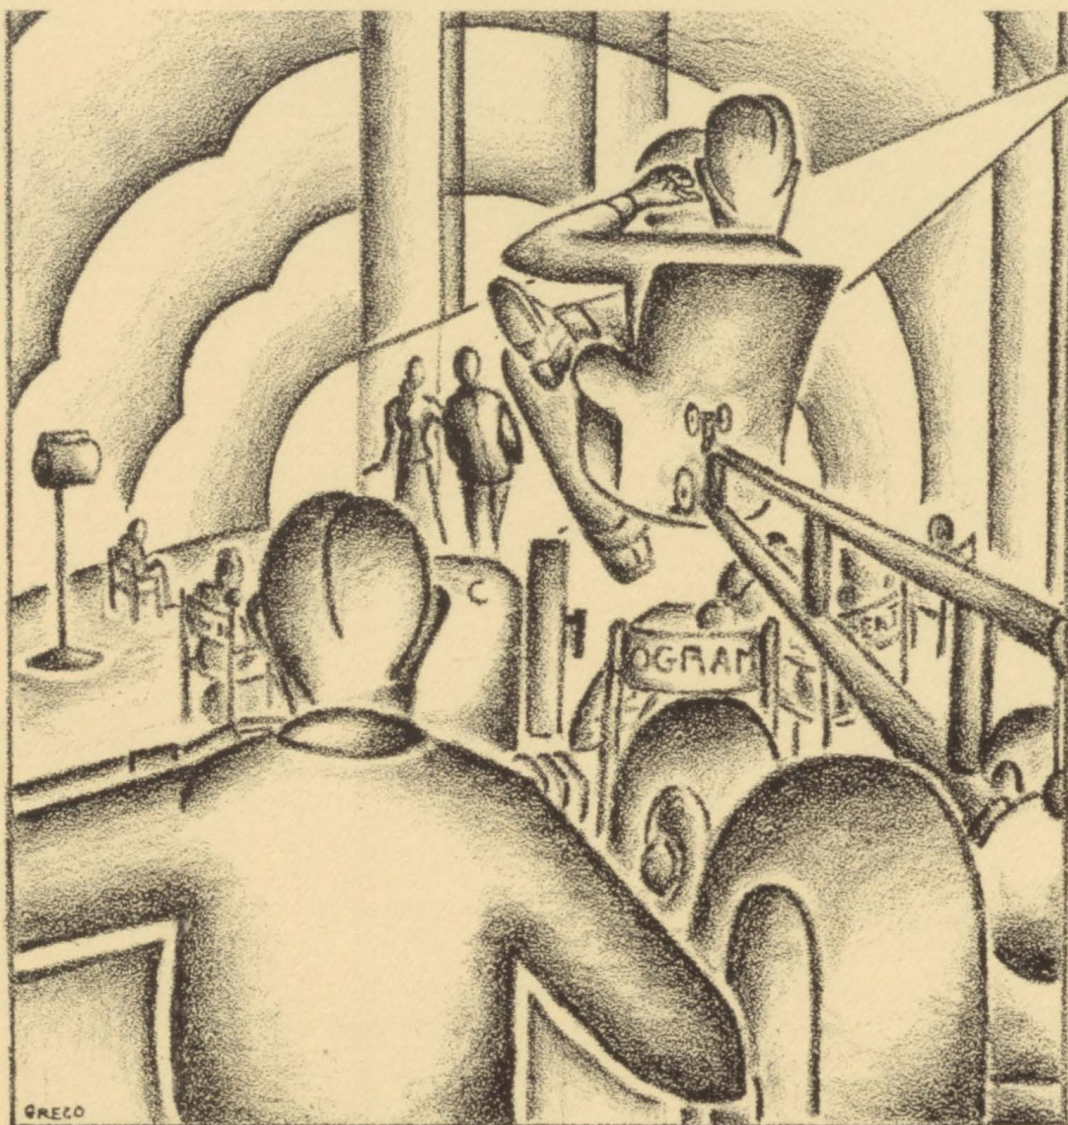

Only a short half-year ago the present graduating class presented for the amusement and taxation of the students of Barringer (and anyone else we could drag in) that gorgeous panorama, that stupendous spectacle, the Minstrel Musicale. For two nights, April 30 and May 1 of this year the auditorium was packed to the ventilators with customers waiting to get something for their money. They got it. When the first soft strains of the overture by the 4B orchestra broke upon the bated stillness, the curtain silently opened, revealing a hundred nervous 4B's piled somehow on lunchroom benches. Immediately we all knew it was going to be a great success. Benny Bucca excelled his merry little self in the role of Silas. Jane Cuthbert spotlighted the one she "Wanted." Gus Schaumann's solo, "Unsophisticated Sue" touched our hearts, and when John Laccitiello crooned, "Too Marvelous for Words" we thought it was too. Plava Rinaldi, made us pull out our handkerchiefs with "Radio in Heaven," and "Louisiana Hayride" by Rocco Carangi, left us remembering the last hayride we were on. Woo-wool!

During the intermission, those irrepressible funsters, Gus Schaumann, Peggy Wallace and "Babe" Walsh did a trio in the not-so-gay-nineties style. Things began to warm up in the second half with Ken Glass spreading "Everybody's Jam." Then Ella Jane VanHorn's low, thrilling voice sent shivers down our spines with "Choir Boy." Tommy Yaeger delighted the audience with "O Promise Me." Then came that Metropolitan (not yet but soon) baritone, Frank Walsh singing "Without a Song," and after him the hit of the evening, Harold "Foo" Kritzer singing (shall we call it singing?) "Ida." Then Marie Guilfoyle tapped out, "Big Boy Blue," and the deepest bass in Barringer, Philip Mintz, reached way down for "Wagon Wheels." After the closing chorus, "Saskatchewan," the curtains drew together in the midst of thunderous applause. The audience went home feeling that indeed it had had its money's worth.

DAY IS DONE

Broken
Disappointed
My soul thirsteth in the Scorching sun. Then, like a cool breeze
Came night.

EVENING

The still Faint whisper of
A willow tree—the soft
Deepening shadows of dusk . . . a Bird calls.

BLUE NIGHT

Tiny
Sprites dance on the Fountain's rim, twinkling in
The silver mist-weaving charms and Moon dreams.

SAPPHIRE

The deep
Blue depths conceal
The lust of royal crowns
In the flashing enchantment of
The court.

THE DUCHESS' GOWN

Fragile
Web of silver
Gauze, spun by pixies'
Elfin laughter with stardust from
The blue.

WINDS

Dark winds,
Raw winds,
Claw the scraggy hills;
Lost winds,
Sharp winds,
Chafe the angry rills.

Light winds,
Soft winds,
Gentle tender hands;
Warm winds,
Calm winds,
Soothe our troubled lands.

TROPIC NIGHT

Quiet night,
Tropic isle,
Silvery smooth lagoon;
Soft sea breeze,
Swaying palm,
Cool enchanting moon.

Crocodile,
Frail gazelle,
Wrapped in gleaming light;
Swishing tail,
Snapping jaws,
Death had stalked the night.

CONQUEST

Dearest Anne, do you remember
When I loved you in November
And I kissed you in December?
Then what fun we had in Spring?
Now—remember everything?
How we kissed beneath the moon
Goodbye Anne dear—now it's June.

APRIL RAIN

Soft, sweet drops were fairies' tears
Playing on our old tin roof
Weaving songs of fancies gay—
Laughter, magic, happy play
I still remember all those years
When I was still a child—aloof
Living in worlds of Kings and Queens
Weaving—spinning fragile dreams.

Ella Jane VanHorn

SHANGHAI 1937

See the pretty battleship,
Floating in the bay;
See the silent guns,
So long, so strong, so gray.

See the happy children
Playing near the loft;
See the little puppy
So round, so fat, so soft.

See the puff of smoke;
Hear the whining shell;
The crashing, shattering, screaming,
The puppy's whimpering yell.

Kwan-yin gracious goddess
Hear a coolie's plea;
Take me from this world of strife,
To rest, to peace, to thee.

C'EST LA GUERRE

On through the tearing wire mesh,
Men slither, creep and fall
Part muck, part blood, part mangled flesh,
The rest not there at all.

A young lieutenant screams in pain;
His suit a scarlet gown
For from a gushing broken vein,
A red rain spatters down.

The thick rich ruby drops cascade,
A bubbling spurting rill;
The loss of precious blood has made
His beating heart grow still.

And now he's dead, so let him lie,
Lie wallowing in gore;
What's that you ask me? Who am I?
I'm Mars the God of War.

Gustave William Schaumann

SQUIRREL CAGE

Can war be stopped?
A foolish thought,
Tried, failed, and tried by men;
An endless chain
A squirrel cage
War, peace, then war again.

"ONE MOMENT, PLEASE"

by Marie Guilfoyle

She sat there, in the rest room, thinking again of her job. Long distance operator. At first it had been interesting, exciting, but now, after five years, well—she supposed any job would be tiring after five years, but somehow, this job seemed to get under her skin.

Lilian was familiar with the type who generally called long distance. The business man—who knew just what he wanted and became impatient and vexed at delay. The proverbial lover who called from every city merely to make a good impression on his girl. The young boy, first time away from home, calling to reassure his mother, and to wipe away some of his loneliness and homesickness.

Lilian Carey sighed. Yes—she could tell just by the tone of voice, which type of person was calling.

This flood, now—it was wearing her down. All the calls, frantic, urgent, pleading! It was so hard to be truthful when an entire city or town had been wiped out. The heart-rending sobs on the opposite end of the wire—each one rang long after in her mind.

Sometimes it helped to think of Johnny, even though he was up there in the thick of it. Johnny, so sure, so strong, so—so sweet, up there in the midst of all that trouble and turmoil. He was a doctor, or rather, would be in three more months. He had a good future ahead, too, for Johnny was going to Europe to study with Von Kuerzer, the famous Austrian specialist. Johnny had been saving since he began interning—little enough to be sure—but somehow he had managed to accumulate five hundred dollars on which to start. Many a night had they sat in her parlor, in order to save even the dollar that a movie would cost. But she didn't mind staying at home, with Johnny there. They had often spoken of marriage, but it was so far, so terribly far away. Johnny had to study in Vienna for two years before he could even set out on his own, establish a small practice. Sometimes she thought her dreams were hopeless—it was so long to wait.

And now, there he was offering his services to aid the victims in the flooded areas, and he only an interne. Payneton—a small town practically unknown to the outside world—that was where Johnny was working so feverishly. In a small, entirely inadequate hospital, with a handful of men, only two of whom were skilled doctors. The others were like Johnny—volunteers.

Finally she rose. Time to go back to work, back to the wearying calls and heartrending entreaties.

Back at the switchboard she answered the calls mechanically, already hardened to the pitiful pleading voices, trying not to think of Johnny's danger, as the flood damages increased.

She could tell by the calls to Ithaca, that the waters were rising rapidly, and Ithaca was the nearest major city to Payneton. The calls had to go through the large office as there was no direct connection to the smaller town. As the graveness of the situation rose, she began to really fear for the first time and soon after, tried to pray.

A frantic voice came to her "Operator—please try to get thru to Payneton. It's a small town near Ithaca, in upper New York. My wife and baby are up there. I don't know the number of the house—but—there's a garage next to it where they have a phone—and next to that an old church that they're using as a hospital—please try to get through."

Lilian's heart contracted. Payneton—the hospital in the church, where Johnny was. She put through the call to Ithaca. The waiting seemed interminable. At last the answer—"I'm sorry, that garage went down the river hours ago."

Something snapped in her brain and she said in a strained harsh voice, that sounded a long way off, "I'm sorry sir"—she couldn't tell the truth—she couldn't—"the wires are—down" she lied guiltily. A gasp was the only response. Something hammered in her brain—Johnny! That church. It was so old; it had been closed up, but during the need, they were using it for a hospital. The garage—stronger surely than that old dilapidated church building—the garage went down the river hours ago! Hours! It might as well have been years. Oh! my God! Johnny!

She was no more than an automaton now, a machine—no longer a person. There was a weight on her heart stifling her! and in her mind a vision of Johnny's pale haggard face, strong tall body, somewhere in those roaring crazy waters. Johnny, who had so much in life to look forward to, whom she was going to marry, and all she could do was sit there! She'd go out of her mind soon—three hours and twenty minutes longer to sit and answer calls.

One was coming in from Ithaca. She had to answer. "Ithaca calling New York. Grovener Hospital please—it's urgent!"

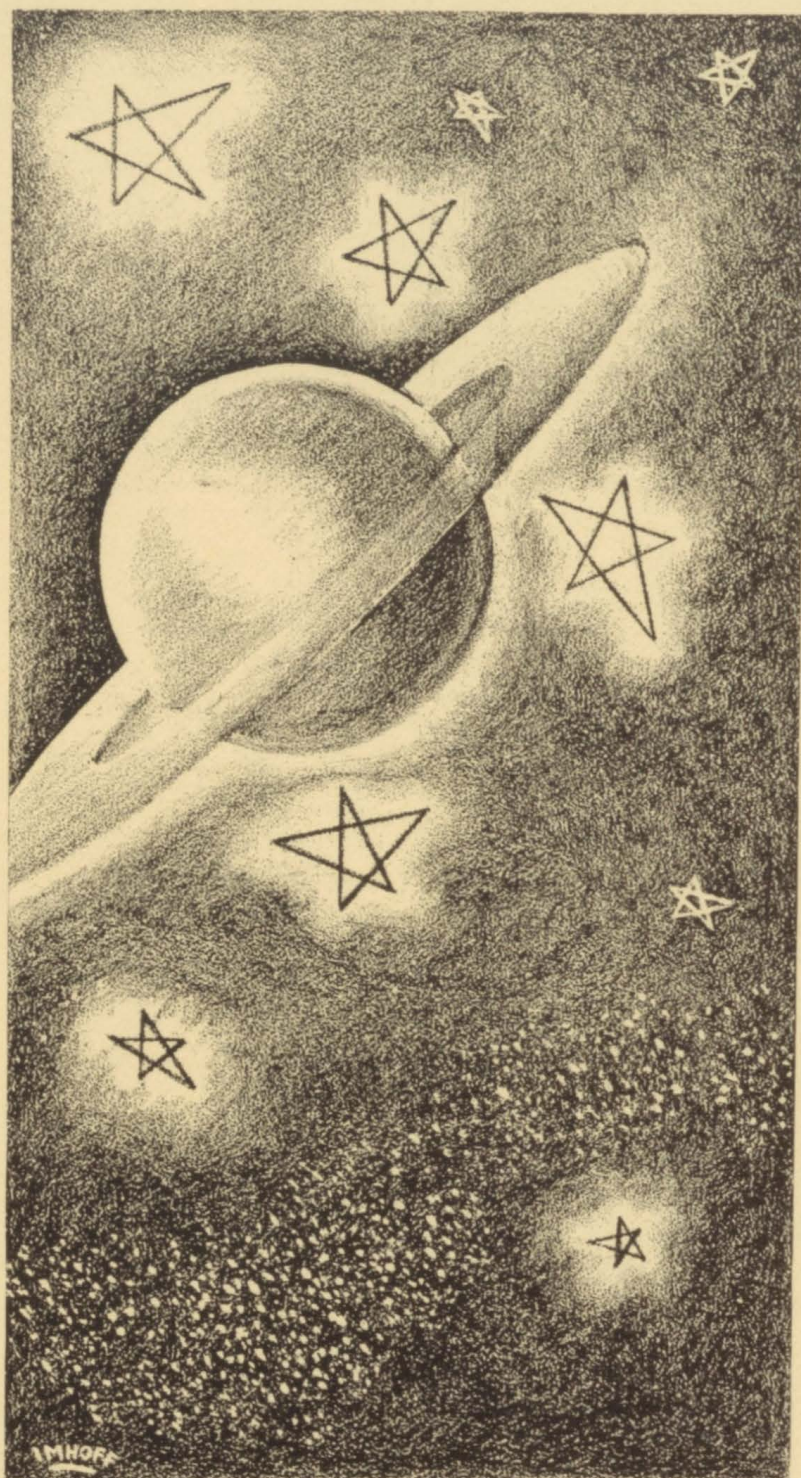

Another sick call! Would it never end?

"Operator! do you hear me?" a voice demanded impatiently. She snapped back to reality. It was Johnny's voice—her own Johnny—calling from Ithaca.

"Operator! Grovener Hospital." Thank God! he was safe. Johnny was alive—and all she could say was:

"One moment, please!"

Last Reel

PREMIERE

by Ella Jane Van Horn and Natalie Feinsmith

Last night a long awaited picture "Four Years to Kill" had its world premiere in Hollywood attended by thousands of Hollywood's elite. A gala night! Fans crowded around the theatre hoping to get a glimpse of the stars. Well known reporters, among whom were Froehlich of the Globe, Coxhill of the Times, and Violet Salvatoriello of the Daily Chatter, covered this great event. The policemen, headed by Italo Amoresano did a fine job of holding back the excited crowd.

All heads turned toward the street as the notables began to arrive. The first limousine drove up and out stepped the famous director of this epic in movie history, Joseph Forte. He was escorting a new star, Rose LoConte, soon to be seen in the new picture "The Jungle Princess." The next important personage to arrive was the governor of our beautiful state, Ted Comstock. Trailing behind him we saw Leonard Sasso, well-known chairman of ninety-nine committees.

Natalie Feinsmith, director of the French filme company, Drame Francais, came over from France, just to preview this marvelous production. Entering next was Miss Connie Caffrey, the best dressed woman in America and leading member of the 400. She was arrayed in a beautiful Paris creation by Torsiello.

The three plowmen, newest comedian sensations, trucked in on a haywagon causing great shouts of laughter. Needless to say they were Benny Bucca, who rocked the world with "Wal I Swan," Philip Mintz, with "Wagon Wheels," and John Laccitiello, who supplied the romance with "You're Marvelous." A big apple drove up, crowding out the cars. From it came Alice Thompson, well known danseuse, and Ralph Torsiello, who Susie Q'd up to entrance. This great publicity stunt was engineered by Patsy Agresta, agent for the comedians.

The noted Siberian explorer, Count Samuelavitch Sedicino, stepped out of a refrigerated trailer boxcar. He later revealed that this procedure was necessary to preserve, at a freezing temperature, his precious Russian wolf-skin coat. What a wolf! Female hearts fluttered as Rocco Verniero, that famous screen playboy, graciously signed some autographs for the admiring fans. Radio fans were thrilled to see Marcelle Merritt in person. She has just finished a series of talks on "The Right and Bright Things To Do," on the B. H. S. network, sponsored by Kenneth Glass's Glass Company. Her charming laugh has been imitated on stage, screen, and radio but there's nothing like the real thing.

Jane Cuthbert, the noted research scientist, who has just completed her seventh volume of "Bugs and Bats" was the next arrival. Her book has turned science upside down.

Slipping in unobserved, was the author of this great tragicomedy, Bill Osborne. Peggy Wallace and Frank Walsh, the authors of the latest marvel, "How to Fool Friends and Pixillate People," were also there.

Maria Guilfoyle, newly discovered Vienne ballerina, (formerly of Newark), was there with all her fans. Charles Meade, well-known track star long in the public eye, was there with the present Miss America, Irene Loftus.

The first stars of this gigantic show to arrive were Betty Schlesinger and Bob Reddy, who supplied the comedy. They were followed by Walter Nilsson, who, in this picture, was getting his big chance as a screen lover. John Flanagan and "Betty Boop" Broman, that nitwit team, came next. The last to arrive was Vinnie Siclari, who managed to get in without a ticket by hiding under Babe Walsh's high silk hat.

This picture was all and more than was expected. Cinema critics gave it the highest rating and declared its precedence over any other production this year. At last, after four years of waiting, the public saw this greatest extravaganza of all time.

A FEW WORDS, PLEASE!

"The Last Reel" proudly presents a few pithy morsels from famous Hollywood actors, producers, and other crazy people.

Mr. Adolf Laemmle Zukor Landolphi sticks out his mighty chest with pride and tells us that some unknown admirer has sent him another White Elephant for his collection. (Of course you know Mr. Landolphi's home is simply stuffed with White Elephants and other Pets).

Mr. Dynamo Saylor's imperturbable butler, Comstock, led us to the nursery where we found Mr. Saylor busily marching lead soldiers up and down the carpet. On spying us he yelled, "Get out of here—can't you see I'm busy with my toys?" (Mr. Saylor retired with silence but still keeps up his exercise.) As we drove from the beautiful grounds we noticed a new sign on the gate, "Moletomic Lodge."

While driving through the corridors of the Stupendous Picture Co. we stumbled over Mr. Slash-em Snavelly checking a brand-new picture. "Flunk that scene for the term," he cried. "Oh it's you! Did you hear what I just said? Well scram, or I'll flunk you too!" We were glad to get out of there with whole report cards.

When we approached Mr. Will Hays Osborne, head of the Censor and Cuttem Board of Hollywood, we were greeted with a comprehensive scrutiny. When we asked Mr. Osborne what the once-over was for he said, "I wanted to see if you were completely covered," at which we covertly pulled down our cuffs. We asked Mr. Osborne how the censoring business was and he was pessimistic. "There's nothing for me to do," he wailed. "We've scared them all so that they don't put in anything I can censor. I've had to fire all my help." W. H. Osborne has to scrape along on a measly $50,000.00 a year! We left his office feeling much depressed.

When we were announced to Miss Alice Dietrich Thompson we found her sitting near the fireplace reading a copy of our magazine. Just as we started to speak, one of her pet Malangas sneezed and blew the "mag" up the chimney. "I was wishing for something like that," she snapped. "That's the Last Reel I'll ever read!"

"May we quote you?" we asked.

"Yes," she said, "but if you say anything about my husbands, I'll sue the whole nine pages of you!" Whereupon we fell into a friendly chat about poisonings, deaths, suicides, divorces, murders, and other neighborhood occurrences. The time sped so pleasantly that we were late for supper and got the devil.

So long.

HOW TO KEEP SWEET

Walter (R. Taylor) Nilsson suggests the following:

Sugar Cookies

3 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ salt
1¼ sugar
3 eggs
1 cup shortening
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Sift dry ingredients together. Add shortening, mixing in with a fork. Add unbeaten eggs and flavoring. Roll out very thin on floured board and cut with floured cookie cutters. Decorate tops if desired.
Bake in moderate oven at 375° for 8 minutes.

Barringer Special

Small amount of home work (not much)
Mixed with plenty of outside interests
(blondes preferred)

A few cut slips

Sprinkled heavily with F's
Let this cook slowly for 4 years
And we can guarantee the results.

For a pull greater than T. Comstock's we suggest

Molasses Candy

1 cup molasses
2 cups sugar
½ cup butter
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon water

Boil until it crisps in water and pull.

When we slapped Mr. R. Taylor on the back, he coughed up the following dessert:

2 tickets to the 4A Dance
1 '29 Model A Ford (with rumble seat)
1 tbls. beautiful blond
2 8 ft. of lonely road
6 calories of harvest moon

Mix well and place it among your souvenirs.

Over the table at the Brown Derby we asked Margaret Sullivan Wallace what she liked to guzzle best and she wrote this recipe on the tablecloth:

1 Hart-Shaffer and Mary Suit
A Packard Convertible Coupe
2 (50 yard) seats for Army and Navy game

Mix in a tall bar glass; add cracked ice and serve immediately. (Miss Wallace says, "It's not so bad.")

SOMEDAY, OR, WHAT I SHOULD DO IF.

If someday to these ancient halls I ever should return,
I've got a little list, I've got a little list
Of some obnoxious characters to plant beneath the fern,
Who never would be missed, who never would be missed!
There's that haughty lunch-room minute-girl who orders us to sit,—
When we much rather stand in groups and swap a spicy bit—
Those Periscopic slingers of insinuating dirt,
Such as, "We wonder who's agog when near a certain skirt!"
And those unbelieving teachers who on late slips all insist—
They'd none of 'em be missed—they'd none of 'em be missed.

4A CLASS. He's got 'em on the list—he's got 'em on the list;
And they'll none of 'em be missed—they'll none of 'em be missed.

There's the plugger for the 3A dance who gargles from the stage,
And the shy misogynist—I've got him on the list!
And radicals like Rooney, seeking for a living wage,
They never would be missed—they never would be missed!
Then the enterprising salesman of feathers marked with B's
That they brandish fiercely 'neath our noses, till we all have to sneeze,
And the never-tiring gym teacher who yells "all out-of-doors,"
"Hep! Hep! And down the gym by twos and maybe fours!"
And that little brat in every class, that self-styled humorist,
I don't think she'd be missed—I'm sure she'd not be missed!

4A CLASS. He's got her on the list—he's got her on the list;
WE don't think she'll be missed—we're sure she'll not be missed!

And all the local gossips, list'ning ears bent to the floor,
The chopstick pianist—I've got him on my list!
All witty Juniors, comic Sophs, clowns of corridor—
They'd none of 'em be missed—they'd none of 'em be missed.
And those erudite phenomena who get the highest marks,
And study while the rest of us truck off on schoolnight larks—
And all the trusting teachers who with confidence sublime,
Request that every book-report be handed in on time,
But especially that utterly misguided pessimist,
Who says the class of January never will be missed!

4A CLASS. That crazy pessimist—that loony pessimist;
Who says we won't be missed—Who says we won't be missed!

EUPLIO ARMINIO

"Eups" started his football career at Barringer in his freshman year when he won a berth his first time out on the freshman squad. In '34 he became varsity linesman, repeating this feat in '35 and '36 and again in '37. In all these years, Arminio has earned a major "B" for his fine work on the varsity. As a reward for his exceptional work, he has been chosen captain by his fellow team-mates. "Eups" was mentioned for "All State" in '37, and leaves us with four major letters.

BENNY BUCCA

As a freshman, Ben's one great ambition, besides being graduated was to earn a Big Blue "B". Not having the necessary qualifications for some active sport, Ben proceeded to obtain a position as assistant manager of the cross-country team. The members of the squad felt the profits of his fine work, and so elected him manager of the 1937 team. Ben leaves Barringer with one minor letter and one major "B".

ANTHONY CARUSO

Anthony went out for baseball in '36, and immediately secured for himself a place in the outfield. In '37 he placed well up among the leading batters and was rewarded with a major "B".

ERNEST D'AMBROSIO

"Ernie" focused his attention on managership. In '34 and '35 he was elected assistant baseball manager, becoming assistant football manager in '35. In recognition of his good work, he was elected manager in '36. Ernie has been awarded three minor letters and one major "B".

JACK DARGIN

Jack is one of Barringer's best athletes. He has received four major letters. His fine football playing has won him, for two years, a place on the "All City" team. In track, Jack's fine physical fitness brought him success in the weights. His best effort was in practice, tossing the disc one hundred twenty-three feet making an unofficial city record.

JULIUS DelROVERE

Julie has become, through his hard work, one of the most distinguished members of our cross-country team. In 1936, when the cross-country team won the city title, DelRovere was an important factor in the meet. A fractured knee, occasioned by some summer activity, has kept Julie, in his senior year, from his coveted place on the cross-country team; his place is not an easy matter to fill, and undoubtedly he is sorely missed.

JEROME DEMEL

Jerry went out for football as a freshman and because of his fine performance at end position was placed on the varsity in his sophomore year. Jerry was mentioned for "All City" honors in '36. Not only did he play football, but he also excelled in track where he was considered one of the finest shot putters in the city. Jerry leaves Barringer with three major "B's" in his possession.

GEORGE EITEL

George went out for football in '35. Mr. Salerno, seeing his fine possibilities, made him a substitute tackle. In '36 he played a "Bang up" season and was the team's leading cog on the line. In '37 we saw him alternating at tackle and center. George leaves us with two major letters and a fine record of sportsmanship.

DAVE FROEHLICH

Dave early began his career as manager in Barringer. As a frosh he was slated to manage our first city championship freshman football team. In his sophomore year, he became a tennis candidate; he dropped this sport to become assistant manager of our track team. A year later, Dave was elected manager of the team, a team which clinched the city championship by spurring from behind to nose out a favored West Side squad. Thus, Dave made his letter by managing a team which gave Barringer its tenth consecutive city championship.

DAVE FRONEFIELD

Dave began his athletic career in Barringer by first going out for track in the spring of '35. This training hardened his muscles for football. In '36, Dave played an excellent season at end position and was rewarded with a major "B". He also has been active in interclass baseball and basketball.

JOE GIALANELLA

In his freshman year, Joe participated both in football and track. In '34 and '35, he played halfback on the varsity football team. Unluckily for him and the team, Joe has since been unable to play because of a serious knee injury at the end of the season of '35. For his fine achievements he has received three major letters.

JOSEPH GRECO

Joe is one of the few boys ever to gain managership of two sports. In the spring of 1936, Joe was appointed assistant manager of the baseball team. At the close of the season, he was elected manager for 1937. During the autumn of 1936, Joe was appointed assistant manager of the football team, later being chosen manager for the season of '37.

GEORGE GUARINO

"Guar" went out for freshman football, but not finding it to his liking tried his hand at baseball. It seemed that he made a change for the best because he held down a varsity position for two years. "Guar" leaves us with one major letter.

ROBERT LaCAPRA

Bob is another one of our baseball "B" men. This year was his first attempt to make the varsity. By his hard work and fine showing, he was rewarded with a varsity position, and later with a major letter.

JOHN LACCITIELLO

Immediately upon entering Barringer, "Jiggs" tried out for the freshman team. After learning the fundamentals of the game, he tried out for the varsity, but was put on the second team. In '36 and '37 he played guard position on the varsity and starred in almost every game. He has earned three letters. His fine personality has gained him many friends on the team.

CHARLES MEADE

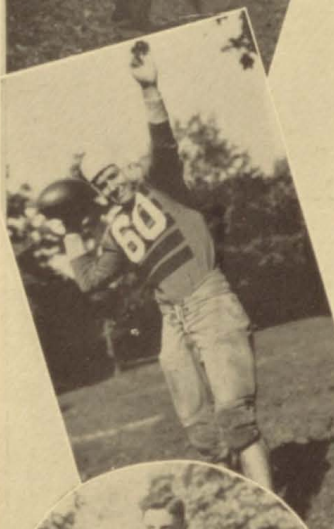

Upon Meade's promotion to 2B, our track coach knew Charlie had fine possibilities as a track and cross-country runner. In his junior year he finished well up among the leading runners of the state and was undefeated in dual meets. The same year he placed second in the city cross-country meet. He is also the city javelin champion. Charlie is one of the few boys to gain the distinction of being captain of two teams. He leaves Barringer with a total number of thirty medals and five major letters.

ANTHONY ROPPOLO

"Tex" was captain of the freshman team in 1934. After his great showing in '34, he earned a berth on the varsity squad in '35, '36 and '37. He has earned three varsity letters. Tex also went out for track in '35 and '36 earning a minor letter.

SAM SEDICINO

Upon entering Barringer, Sam's aspiration was to make the baseball team. He went out for baseball in '36, and earned a second team berth. In '37 he made the varsity, holding down the "hot corner". Throughout the season he alternated at that position, but played in enough games to earn his "B".

FINE QUALITY PRINTING is nowhere so essential as in school and college annuals. The story told by copy is worthless unless the printed pages provide eloquent testimony of its truthful reproduction of campus life.

- Production of distinctive printing depends upon the masterful handling of such technicalities as layout, artwork, make-ready, and presswork, and also upon the selection of proper ink, paper and binding.
- Consistently good printing has made the Colyer organization the first and last choice of the leading schools and colleges.

THE END

The three old sister Fates,
All sitting in a row,
Sat silently a'watchin' ,
Of our departing show.

When came the happy end,
The creaking curtains closed,
The glaring lights turned on,
And all the guilt exposed.

The one who held the yarn
To her who held the shears,
Said almost grudgingly,
"Well sho! Not bad, my dears!"

Whereon the shuttle crone
Said "Sister don't you fret.
See there, and wait awhile;
You haint seen nuthin' yet!"

WM. BRAMAN
